Joint Meeting of Bar Association

Opens at Hot Springs. Hot Springs, Va., July 26 .- The annual meeting of the Maryland and Virginia State Bar Association (as host), was called Steamers daily except Monday, 9 a. m., to order by George A. Frick, member of the executive committee, in the handsome ballroom of the Homestead Hotel shortly before noon to-day. The opening prayer was delivered by Rev. John G. Scott, of Hot Springs.

In the absence of George C. Gregor, of Richmond, chairman of the executive committee, Mr. Frick made the welcoming address on behalf of the State bar of Virginia. He expressed pleasure at being a native of Maryland, and struck a chord of fellow-feeling among the delegates when he remarked that he recognized among many of the Maryland delegates old school companions. He hoped that the Maryland delegates found themselves at home as much as he did upon his visit to Maryland. President R. Walton Moore, of the Virginia association, in his address upon Grotius and the movement for interna tional peace, prefaced his remarks by saying that there was no difference between Maryland and Virginia, and that no other boundary line existed save the po-
